Communication Manager

You ensure audience reach for our International Aid Unit

The challenge: Reporting to the Head of the International Aid Unit, you mainly provide advocacy and communication for all aspects related to the Multidrug-Resistant Tuberculosis (MDR-TB) program and other relevant Corporate Social Responsibility activities. You identify key events to showcase the MDR-TB partnership and to promote the fight against TB. You ensure audience reach externally and internally through effective writing of speeches, press releases, letters, and progress report among others. You are responsible for the organization of the Annual Partnership Program and ensure the added-value of this exchange platform. In addition you also take an active part in all other International Aid Unit activities.

Yourself: Holder of a Masters Degree or equivalent, you have a minimum of 5 years practice in communication/PR/media relations. You have experience in an international environment, ideally somehow government related. You have proven your ability to develop networks and are used to work with external stakeholders, advocacy groups and media. Your strong sense of priorities allows you to handle various projects simultaneously and with short deadlines. You are diplomatic by nature and know how to deal with sensitive issues. Flexible and service-oriented, you take pride in delivering complex issues in a concise and clear format. Your mother tongue is English and you are open to some traveling.

The offer: The chance to join a prestigious pharmaceutical company with a bright future. The opportunity to be part of a unique social program, delivering health care solutions to the most vulnerable throughout the world. A relatively large degree of autonomy in a role where your proactive attitude will be much appreciated. A wide scope of responsibilities as well as many varied and enriching contacts worldwide. An attractive salary package and first class employment benefits.
